Bone Orchard Performs Friday in the Los Alamos Summer Concert Series

Los Alamos, New Mexico, August 4, 2021: Southwest Americana band Bone Orchard will perform this Friday in the Los Alamos Summer Concert Series Presented by Toyota of Santa Fe. With Daniel Pretends Eagle on guitar and vocals, Carol Morgan-Eagle on vocals, Chipper Thompson on mandolin, guitar and Vihuela, Michael Chavez alternating with Ray Vollmer on drums, and Paul Reid on bass, this band will take you on a journey through a Spanish Gypsy Western soundscape that will keep you dancing the night away. This exciting music sensation will follow opening acts by Escape on a Horse, Santa Fe Youth Symphony Association and the Family YMCA. Festivities start at 6pm.

Bone Orchard formed in the early 1990s when Daniel Pretends Eagle and wife Carol Morgan-Eagle began co-writing, recording and producing their own music in Taos New Mexico. Together, they have crafted a sound and songwriting style that expresses their passions and singular haunting beauty of the vistas and landscapes of the Southwest that they call Southwest Americana.
